

The JHU Writing Center

Gilman Hall 230

Sun-Thurs 2-10

Why visit the Writing Center?

Top Reasons to Visit the Writing Center

- Writing is rhetorical and context dependent
 - Writing is a central skill for academic and professional success
 - Writing is hard—for everyone
 - Every writer needs a reader
 - Collaboration is the key
-

Who We Are

- Peer Tutor Center
- All tutors are JHU undergraduate and graduate students who have received specialized training
- Tutors come from across majors and disciplines

Who We Work With:

All undergraduate and graduate students in degree programs on the Homewood campus.

Any level, any major

What We Work On

All genres in all disciplines:

- Essays
 - Lab Reports
 - Personal Statements
 - Creative Writing
 - Research papers
-

What stage of the process you should be in:

Any stage!

- Prewriting (with only the assignment sheet)
- Drafting
- Outlining
- Editing

Visit more than once for the same writing project.

What should I bring to my Writing Center Appointment?

- Assignment sheet
- Notes
- Drafts
- Questions for your tutor!

The Writing Center welcomes all writers from the Hopkins community!

The Writing Center offers undergraduate and graduate students free, individual conferences with experienced tutors, all of whom are careful and perceptive readers of all types of writing done at the university.

Make an appointment today!

Visit our website:

<https://krieger.jhu.edu/writingcenter/>

Schedule An Appointment

Our experienced tutors offer free conferences to all students enrolled at Johns Hopkins University.

Schedule Appointment

What does a session look like?

At a Writing Center visit, you will talk out your ideas, writing plans, questions, and concerns with your peer tutor.

